Pickpocket to Escape from Prison. BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Feb. 13.-The grand jury to-day indicted Captain Daniel Foster, mayor of the city, on a charge of allowing Ryan, a Chicago pickpocket, to escape from the city prison on Oct, 15 last. There are two indictments against the mayor, one for allowing Ryan to go and one for malfeasance. Ryan was arrested soon after in Chicago, and is now in jail there. He says that he gave up $150 and a diamond pin to secure his freedom, and says Jay Smith, a sporting man of this city, engineered the he liberated Ryan by express orders of the mayor. LONDON, Feb. 13.-Several conflicting dispatches and wild rumors were received here to-day from Canea, Island of Crete, and though all the reports were not verified, some contained enough truth to show the gravity of the situation has increased. One report was to the effect that the Greeks and Turks had clashed, and that a Turkish vessel which attempted to leave Herakilon to-day was forced to return by | week. a Greek cruiser.

It is reported in Canea this morning that the Greek torpedo flotilla, commanded by Prince George, of Greece, which arrived at Canea yesterday, had succeeded, in spite of the vigilance of the foreign war ships, in landing during the night a quantity of arms, eight hundred cases af ammunition and three hundred cases of provisions intended for the Cretan insurgents, who are gathered in large numbers on the hill tops of Canea. It is also stated that the Greek war ships have the intention of landing a Greek colonel of artillery, eighty Greek artillerymen and some guns. The Cretan insurgents, after proclaiming their independence of Turkey and the union of Crete with Greece, on Thursday formed a provisional session of a large part of the island, and are threatening the important towns.

The landing of blue jackets and marines from the foreign fleets is contemplated, according to report. The British first-class on the Thessalian frontiers, or, in other gunboat Harrier, the first-class gunboat Dryad, the third-class gunboat Blazer and the torpedo destroyer Ardent left Valetta to-day to reinforce the British fleet in Cretan waters. In official circles here this outcome is not believed to be possible and there is a disposition now to quietly allow even this to take its natural course, the idea being that Crete is practically free and that the island is likely to remain so unless subdued by the powers. Therefore, the question to be discussed, it is said, is whether the powers will permit the Cretan insurgents to enjoy their independ-ence and eventually ally themselves with

ALL EUROPE AROUSED.

Watching the "Greek Fire" and Secretly Playing for Position. LONDON, Feb. 13.-All Europe is watchng the Cretan fireworks display with the greatest anxiety, as a spark may set all Europe ablaze. Everybody is agreed that the present moment is the most critical since the powers intervened in Turkish affairs. The daring action of Greece in sending Prince George with a torpedo flotilla to Crete has caused a tremendous flutter in the European cabinets. Telegraphic dispatches on the subject have been flying across the continent between the different governments and their embassies. Unusual activity prevails at the British Marquis of Salisbury yesterday had special interview with the Russian, Austrian and German ambassadors. The Greek note to the powers justifying the attitude of Greece towards Crete is couched in such strong terms as to be regarded in official circles here as almost tanamount to a declaration of war against The note accuses the Turkish troops of siding with the Mussulamns, and that the Turkish reinforcements meant a renewal of atrocities against the Cretan Christians, and concluded with saying that it was therefore incumbent on Greece to prevent at all costs the landing of reinforcements, not only out of sympathy with, but as a duty to the Greek population, which has just solemnly declared its determination to accept nothing but union with the escape. Jay Smith and Ryan were also | the motherland. This menacing attitude towards Turkey is quite volte face on the part of King George, who has hitherto shown a moderate, pacific disposition, and there is considerable speculation for the reason thereof. The opinion is expressed that Greece must be able to count on the support of some influential persons and the tolerance of others, and indications point to Russia as her backer. It is contended that the close kinship between the two reigning families must count for something in the present crisis, and people are asking what passed at the conference between the Czar and King George, of Greece, at Copenhagen last autumn. King George also had a con-

A letter addressed to the wife of the dead man was found in the room and it was delivered to her. Two years ago Robert T. Huston, a brother of the dead man, ended his life in the Grand Pacific Hotel in a similar manner. Huston was secretary of the Lemont Building and Loan Association, a director of the Lement State Bank, secretary of the Lemont Electric Light and Power Company, a justice of the peace, and president the Lemont McKinley Club.

LEXINGTON, Va., Feb. 13 .- Hon, John Randolph Tucker died at his home here tonight. He was conscious up to 2 o'clock this afternoon, when he bade his family good-bye. Mr. Tucker has been ill for several weeks and death was expected. Several times he has rallied, but this morning

he began to sink rapidly and died at 8:05 Mr. Tucker was a striking figure in American politics in a stirring epoch in the country's history, a notable leader in the days of the rebellion, and a participant in the exciting times of the electoral commission and the birth of the tariff reform great economic question now before the sion and the birth of the tariff reform country and realizing the grave dangers movement. He was a native Virginian, bearising from modern political agitation, the ing born at Winchester in December, 1823. He was a gradute of the University of felt that the grave risks incurred in the | Virginia, and, following the footsteps of his father, president of the Virginia Court of Appeals, he became a lawyer, and soon gained the front rank of his profession. His first practice was in Richmond, but after a time he returned to the place of his birth and entered into partnership with R. Y. Conrad. Three times he was elected attorney general of his State without opposition. He was an advocate of secession while he held that office. At the close of the war Mr. Tucker resumed private practice and became counsel for the Baltimore

& Ohio Railroad Company. He was also associated with others in the defense of Jefferson Davis. He occupied the chair of professor of law in Washington and Lee University and in 1874 was elected almost unanimously to the House of Representatives. In the House he soon made his mark as a keen and witty yet profound debater, He was an earnest advocate of the electoral commission, and after that, interesting himself in the subject of the tariff, he delivered a speech that still stands as a masterpiece of logic from his point of view, which was that of a tariff for revenue only, Mr. Tucker retired from Congress voluntarily in 1887 after twelve years of honorable service, having served twice as chairman of the committee on the judiciary. After a short time spent in private practice, largely before the United States Supreme Court, he was again tendered and

A Noted Ex-Confederate Officer Passes Away at His Missouri Home.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 13 .- Gen. "Jo" Shelby died at his country home, eight miles from Adrian, Mo., at 4 o'clock this morning. The end came peacefully. The patient had been unconscious since early Monday morning, and had been slowly dying since that time. At a consultation of physicians last night it was given out that death must come before morning, and the family was in constant watch at the bedside of the

His vitality was great, however, and his friends and family had hopes that he would overcome the disease, and, given up to die, the patient's remarkable recuperative powers asserted themselves and each time he revived. During all of last Sunday night and most of Monday the patient talked continually in an irrational way. At times he recognized those about him, but it was only for a moment, when he would again relapse into a comatose or delirious state. He began to sink rapidly Tuesday morning, and in a few moments his pulse was almost imperceptible. Until ville, nine miles from this village. Later General Shelby revived somewhat, but remained unconscious until nourishment. No definite arrangements for the funeral have been made, but it is believed that General Shelby will be buried in Kansas City, where his family reside.

Joseph Orville Shelby was born in Lexington, Ky., in 1831. At nineteen years of age he went with his parents to Missouri. Hemp was the great Missouri staple in those days, and when his parents settled on a farm, young "Joe" secured employment on a rope-walk at Waverly. He ultimately became owner of the works and of a big plantation in Lafayette county, and as a consequence he became a slave owner. When the Kansas dispute came on Mr. Shelby naturally sympathized with the proslavery element, and in the "border troubles" which followed Shelby was a leader in several of the raids into Kansas. When actual hostilities began he was known among his neighbors as Captain Shelby. He raised a company of Confederate cavalry and entered the field, starting to join General Price. A few weeks later Captain Shelby was commissioned as colonel of cavalry and ordered back to Missouri to recruit a regiment. Returning with his band of one hundred men, who had numerous skirmishes with federal bands, Colonel Shelby quickly organized a regiment, to which was joined the three Missouri regiments in a cavalry organization known as "Shelby's Brigade." This brigade, under General Shelby, saw much hard service in Missouri, Arkaasas, Louisiana and to the Confederate army in the West, General Shelby found himself at the head of a well-equipped and thoroughly disciplined body of men, a great many of whom would not admit that their cause had been lost Shelby, however, succeeded in convincing his followers that further fighting against the government would be useless, and when, as an alternative, he proposed a march to Mexico, there to espouse the cause of Maximilian, one thousand men of Texas, where the Confederate government to save this treasure from a marauding
